LESSONS ON LEADERSHIP

In I Chronicles 14:12, we read about David's military leaders waging a successful battle against the Philistines and taking some of the spoils including foreign idols. David forced them to destroy these objects because they violated God's commands. In this brief article we see several qualities to look for in leaders of any place or time.

They abandoned their gods there; so David gave the order and they were burned with fire.

In this brief article we see several qualities to look for in leaders of any place or time.

1. Good leaders know right from wrong

David showed the basic reason why he was a good leader – he was able to know when his followers made a bad choice and correct it. David didn't lead by polls or surveys, he led by following what was right.

2. Good leaders can make unpopular decisions

Even though his men might have revolted at the loss of their loot (not to mention the loss of face at being called to account for sin), David made the tough call.

Leaders have to be ready to sacrifice popularity for the sake of principle.

3. Good leaders obey their leaders

Leaders who see themselves as the final authority, who refuse to humble themselves to reason or right often lead their people to destruction.

David understood that God was his leader and he needed to submit to His leadership if he wanted to retain his own position.

The same principles exist today and when leaders understand these, they can look forward to long and successful leadership, and the people will enjoy peace and prosperity as a result.

Discussion Questions

1. Describe a valued leader you have come in contact with and list some of the characteristics you admired about them.
2. In your opinion/experience, what one weakness lessens a leader's effectiveness? Provide an example scenario.
3. What virtue or skill would you cultivate in yourself that would enable you to become a better leader?

POETRY CORNER

IF THERE WAS NO CHURCH

Have you ever wondered, Have you had the thought? What if there was no such thing, As the church which Christ's blood bought? There would be no Sunday gatherings, No chance to greet and say, "Hello." No encouragement or exhortation, Because there would be no place to go. No children singing "Jesus Loves Me", Or reciting memory verses loud and clear. No coloring of pictures of the living Savior, Because families would never come near. There would be no voices singing, Or bringing prayers to the Father above. No ministering to the sick and the weary, For there is no church built on love. Oh how I am thankful for the church, Where all spiritual blessings in Christ can be found. Love, support, edification, and good will, For we know the church is certainly heaven bound!
